Dr. Parkhurst's Reply to an Allegation of Supt. Byrnes.

The Minister Premises to Talk Back Again to the Police Chief.

No More Controversial Statements te Come from Mulberry Street.

There was a marked tinge of asperity in

The Superintendent deplores the fact that Dr. Parkhurst has assumed that attitude without having put the sincerity of the police and their willingness to suppress crime to the test, by seeking their co-operation in carrying out the Doctor's ideas as to how it should be done. about be done.
Supt. Byrnes makes the positive assertion that, so far as the danger to the morals of the pure in heart is concerned, no man nor woman need fear contamination unless it is man need fear contamination unless it is sought.

To show what the police have been doing to preserve the morals of New York, Mr. Byrnes of cites from the records that since his succession to his present office seven months ago the police, under his orders, have raided and closed 440 disorderly houses and arrested 13.73 women inmates; thirty-four gambling-bosses have been closed and 286 prisoners taken, besides thirty-two policy shops, with forty-nine prisoners.

mates of raided disorderly houses have gone. Supt. Byrnes asks pointedly how many of the women have been taken in or cared for by Dr. Parkhurat's society.

There is a note of warning in the closing sentences of Supt. Byrnes's reply. He says:

"I shall be prepared when Dr. Parkhurst comes to me in the proper spirit of inquiry to show him a well-trodden path that leads from the very door of his church, as it were, to a brothel hardly a gunshol away, upon which is 'anadows' might exploit themselves with advantage to the security and good repute of his congregation, and with better success than they have achieved in their present vain hunt."
